Black Money By Ross Macdonald

When Lew Archer is hired to get the goods on the suspiciously suave Frenchman who's run off with his client's girlfriend, it looks like a simple case of alienated affections. Things look different when the mysterious foreigner turns out to be connected to a seven-year-old suicide and a mountain of gambling debts. Black Money is Ross Macdonald at his finest, baring the skull beneath the untanned skin of Southern California's high society.

Amazon.com Review

Next time someone who doesn't read mysteries asks where they should start, point them toward Ross Macdonald. Luckily, Vintage/Black Lizard is reprinting several of Macdonald's classic Lew Archer novels in handsome new quality paperback versions. If Black Money (or the other two books in the current series, The Drowning Pool and The Chill) don't have them panting for more, they're probably hopeless cases.

From Library Journal

Published in 1965, 1963, and 1950, respectively, this trio feature Macdonald's hard-boiled private detective Lew Archer. The plots involve murder, deceit, blackmail, sex, and all those other goodies that make for great crime stories.

Review

"A beautiful job . . . rich in plot and character . . . The denouement is both surprising and shocking and the whole is up to Mr. Macdonald's extraordinarily high standards." --New York Times Book Review

"The finest series of detective novels ever written by an American." --New York Times

"It was not just that Ross Macdonald taught us how to write; he taught us how to read, and how to think about life, and maybe in some small but mattering way, how to live." --Robert B. Parker

"Ross Macdonald is one of the greatest American noir novelists, and this is arguably his best . . . Master professional narrator Grover Gardner, who becomes each carefully drawn character and captures the exact mood and the many varied accents in the dialog, is outstanding here . . . A classy narrator in a classic of the genre. Five stars!" --SoundCommentary.com

"[Narrator] Grover Gardner's voice is clear and tough, a natural for the hard-boiled first-person narrative. Macdonald's story--involving gambling debts, murder, sex, and blackmail--is as satisfyingly gritty as one expects . . . Gardner's narration makes it all lively and fresh, rather than a nostalgic relic." --AudioFile

Eric Kinlaw:

As a university student, I exactly feel bored in order to reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library as well as to make a summary for some reserve, they are complained. Just little students that has reading's heart and soul or real their hobby. They just do what the instructor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to at this time there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that reading is not important, boring as well as can't see colorful pictures on there. Yeah, it is to become complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this age, many ways to get whatever you want. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Black Money can make you really feel more interested to read.
