The Tar-Aiym Krang By Alan Dean Foster

Moth was a beautiful planet, the only one with wings -- two great golden clouds suspended in space around it.

Here was a wide-open world for any venture a man might scheme. The planet attracted unwary travelers, hardened space-sailors, and merchant buccaneers -- a teeming, constantly shifting horde that provided a comfortable income for certain quick-witted fellows like Flinx and his pet flying snake Pip. With his odd talents, the pickings were easy enough so that Flinx did not have to be dishonest ... most of the time.

In fact, it hardly seemed dishonest at all to steal a starmap from a dead body that didn't really need it anymore. But Flinx wasn't quite smart enough. He should have wondered why the body was dead in the first place...

Flinx is an orphan who makes his way with a mind-reading street show for the tourists. Life changes for him and his pet snake, Pip, when he steals a treasure map that leads to an important artifact. Stefan Rudnicki is a consummate storyteller who makes his main characters seem real. He presents the story's descriptive passages with a light touch and delivers informative asides in a way that keeps listeners' attention. His engagement in the events as they unfold draws listeners into the details of the plot and the interactions of the characters. J.E.M. © AudioFile 2009, Portland, Maine
